THEY'VEN' A CONVENT

Money and Valuables Stolen from Sisters in Brooklyn.

Catholic Churches and Priests' Houses Also Visited.

In the Garb of Linemen the Robbers Gained an Entrance.

A general alarm was sent out from Brooklyn Police Headquarters this morning, calling for the arrest of two young men, who were had strolling themselves as linemen from the Fire Department, sent to erect fire-alarms. They have chosen Roman Catholic clergymen and Sisters as their victims. Their plan is to get into a house and, while nobody else is present, to steal everything of value that they can carry, and get away.

One of the men called yesterday afternoon at St. Joseph's School, Pacific street, near Vanderbilt avenue, and said he had been sent there by Fire Commissioner Wurstler to put up fire-alarms. He carried a coil of wire and a kit of tools. He made a tour of the building and left without securing any booty. On his way out he met Sexton Corrigan, to whom he related his story, and the latter allowed him to pass.

The man then visited the convent adjoining the school, and was allowed to go through the building unaccompanied by an attendant.

After he had taken his departure it was discovered that the convent book of the Brooklyn Trust Company showing a large deposit, $100 in bills and some silver, had been stolen from a bureau in the room of the Sister Superior. A pair of piers, some wire and a clock were also secured from a bureau in the room of the Sister Superior.

This man was described as twenty-seven years old, 5 feet 6 inches in height, light complexion, dark hair, and dressed in the garb of a laborer.

Two men, answering the same description, called at the residence of Rev. Father Carroll, of St. Vincent De Paul's Church, North Sixth street and Driggs avenue, where they told the same story. The girl who opened the door, suspected them of being crooks and followed them as they went through the house. She left a key of wire behind, saying they would call again.

The girl was brought to the station-house, and on looking over the police gallery she recognized the picture of a man who had been arrested in December on a charge of burglary. He was released in June.

Detectives Moran, Tuttle, Marks and Hayes are looking for the young men.

OFF TO THE PENITENTIARY.

Sutherland Taken There from Raymond Street Jail To-Day.

He Will Don Stripes To-Night and Have His Hair Cut.

A large delegation of Gravesdenses crowded into the Warden's room at Raymond Street Jail this morning, where Kenneth F. Sutherland, the self-confessed ballot-box stuffer, was holding his last reception preparatory to going to Crow Hill Penitentiary.

Sutherland's initiation into the mysteries of prison life, completed the duties of officers of the John W. McKane Association now in the penitentiary. One, the standard bearer, is in Sing Sing Prison. Kenneth F. Sutherland was President of the organization.

Sutherland seemed to be quite cheerful this morning, but friends who had spent the morning with him, stated that he was quite downcast.

At noon Sheriff Butlerting called at the jail and announced that the distinguished prisoner would leave at 1 o'clock. He declined to take the journey in charge of Keeper Wilson.

Sheriff Butlerting called Sutherland how he would like to take the journey to the penitentiary.

"You may have a carriage, you know, if you wish," he said to the prisoner.

"Oh, I don't care how we go," replied the convict, "I guess a trolley car is good enough for me. I need the fresh air."

It was then decided that a trolley car would be the medium of travel for Sutherland, and at the hour named the prisoner, with his friends, started for the station.

All the other members of the John W. McKane Association had previously made the journey from the jail to the "pen" in carriages.

Sutherland this evening, after being weighed and his picture taken, was turned over to the barber and his locks clipped. He will then don the customary prison suit of stripes and be placed in a cell. To-morrow he will attend chapel with his old friends, "Dick" Newton, "Scotty" James and other members of the same fraternity.

On Monday he may be assigned to work in the tailor shop, where the other Gravesdenses are kept busy.

AFTER SHERIFF BUTTLING.

Lawyer Guck May Try to Have Him Indicted for Extortion.

Lawyer W. A. Guck, of 17 Sumner avenue, Brooklyn, is thinking seriously of calling the attention of the Kings County Grand Jury to certain acts of Sheriff William J. Butlerting, which his assistant, Lawyer William O. Miles, yesterday intimated to Supreme Court Justice Gaynor, would be prosecuted.

Miles complained that he was unable to secure the production of Policy No. 10, which was held by Butlerting on a writ of habeas corpus, without paying Sheriff's fees which, he said, were exorbitant. Justice Gaynor denied the charges of the Sheriff's office.

Justice Gaynor told Mr. Miles to pay what the Sheriff demanded, and that he was guilty of extortion to have him indicted and then petition Gov. Flower for his removal.

Justice Watson Snubbed Again.

Michael Collins, who was recently sentenced to six months in jail by Justice Watson, was taken to the Kings County Jail this morning. The latter said that there was no excuse for lacking Collins up.

JUST LIKE BRECKINRIDGE.

But Whitlock's Plea May Fail in a Police Court.

He Met Miss Brower at a Brooklyn Church Sociable.

Edward T. Whitlock, twenty-two years old, of 38 Ashland place, Brooklyn, was held in $1,500 bail by Justice Tighe in the Adams Street Court, Brooklyn, this morning for examination June 18 on a charge of breach of promise. The prisoner's mother, Mrs. Mary Whitlock, furnished bail.

The complainant, Miss Mary E. Brower, of 184 South Elliott place, was in court with her little three-year-old girl. Miss Brower is a pretty brunette, and about two years the junior of her alleged lover.

She says that she became acquainted with Whitlock at a social gathering at the Hanson Place Methodist Church, in 1890. The acquaintance ripened into a warm friendship, and Miss Brower says that in March, 1890, Whitlock proposed marriage to her and was accepted.

In 1891, Miss Brower disappeared from the social circles of the church amid considerable comment. She says her baby girl was born July 4, of that year. Strong efforts were made by mutual friends to induce Whitlock to marry Miss Brower, but their kind offices were fruitless and Whitlock left Brooklyn for the West.

The Browers went to Bridgeport, Conn., where Mrs. Brower used to work for $4.00 a week for her domestic services. She recovered a verdict of $400. Whitlock put in a Breckinridge defense, placing all the blame on Miss Brower.

Whitlock, a few days ago, ventured back to Brooklyn, and was picked up last night by Detectives Raleigh and Kelly of the Sixth avenue station.

Surprised and Arrested Under His Parent's Own Roof.

Andrew Krug, a big, powerful man, who has not done any work for a year, was held for examination in the Lee Avenue Court, Williamsburg, to-day on a charge of assault in the second degree.

The complainant in the case is his wife, Beattie Krug, a little, frail woman, and the story she tells is pitiful in the extreme. Up to four or five months ago the woman supported her husband and three children by taking in washing.

Then her health failed her and Andrew deserted her.

Ever since the woman and two of her children have been living with her sister, Mrs. Maggie Bailey, at 14 Madison street. Thursday night Mrs. Bailey discovered that her husband, who had been drinking, was in the house, and turned her and the children out of doors. Her reason for so doing was that she was tired of his drinking.

With her two children, the elder, a boy of five, Mrs. King started out to find her husband. She found him at a saloon, where he was drinking, and she took him home. She found that he had been drinking, and she took him home. She found that he had been drinking, and she took him home.

COLLECTOR DABNEY DEAD.

The Customs Deputy Stricken on an "I" Road Station.

Apoplexy Follows a Recent Stroke of Paralysis with Fatal Effect.

Virgilus Dabney, fifty-eight years old, of 313 East Seventeenth street, a deputy collector for the port of New York, was taken with a stroke of apoplexy at the Eighteenth street station of the Third Avenue Elevated Railroad about 9:15 o'clock this morning and died suddenly. His body was taken to his home.

Mr. Dabney was appointed to the office of deputy collector Nov. 17 last by collector Kilbuck. He was one of the most popular men in the customs service, and the news of his death was a shock to the Collector and all connected with the Department.

A short time ago Mr. Dabney, who was very large, robust man, was stricken with paralysis. When he recovered one of his legs was left badly affected. He was unable to walk, and he was perfectly well, and was at the Custom-House regularly.

He left his home as usual about 9 o'clock this morning, accompanied by his son, Nolan Burr Dabney, when he reached the station he complained of feeling badly, and they sat down on a bench. He concluded to continue on his way downtown.

Then he started to board a train, but he was unable to do so, and he fell into his son's arms.

Dr. C. A. Hestrom, who happened to be at the station, was called, but despite his efforts Mr. Dabney died in a few minutes. The body was left lying on the bench in full view of passengers until the Coroner could be notified and a permit obtained for its removal. The permit was obtained about noon, and the body was removed.

Shortly after the tragic scene a stylishly dressed, smart, about forty years old, rushed upon the platform and inquired if the body was that of Mr. Dabney. When he was told that it was, he made preparations to remove the body.

An "Evening World" reporter was the first to see the body, and he was told that it was that of Mr. Dabney. He was visibly affected, and said:

"I scarcely know how to express myself. Mr. Dabney was one of the ablest men in this Department, and the news is a great loss to the service. He was a kind-hearted and more popular official."

He said the applications for his position were made a received more than a hundred private letters in Mr. Dabney's favor, and he was one of the best men in the service. He was the son of a well-known merchant, and he was a man of high character.
